

Roberts Wesleyan University recognizes that you may have a significant change of circumstance or situation in your household that affects your ability to pay. Therefore, we have an appeal process through which you may request reconsideration of the federal aid offered and Roberts need-based aid.

These are some important items to keep in mind:

- If you were selected for Verification by the U.S. Department of Education, you must complete that process before submitting an appeal.
- Submission of an appeal does not guarantee an adjustment to a student's award, does not extend the due date on a billing statement, and does not prevent late fees from being assessed to the student.
- If a change in your federal aid is approved, Roberts will also review your Roberts need-based aid.
- In the event Roberts need-based aid is adjusted and the student then declines their self-help aid (federal loans). Roberts reserves the right to retract the amount of additional Roberts need-based aid that had been awarded as a result of the appeal.
- Be sure your request is complete and includes enough information for us to understand your situation. The lack of documentation or clarification of your situation could result in a delay in the review process or a denial. You will be notified in writing once a decision is made.
- Complete each section on this form.

CALCULATION OF CURRENT TOTAL HOUSEHOLD INCOME FOR 2023

While recognizing that the 2023-2024 FAFSA is based on 2021 income, in instances where you are requesting a financial appeal based on a reduced or loss of income, Roberts Wesleyan University will consider the total household's current 2023 income situation for reconsideration of aid as the best measure of ability to pay.
